Customer Impact of Change and Recommended Action:

Replacement Product Information:

No replacement part is available. Intel has not identified a pin replacement part for the RU82566DM. Customers should ensure to place Last Time Orders prior to the LOD of 2/4/2012.

Key Milestone Dates/Customer Instructions:

Last Order Date (LOD) is 2/4/2012 giving customers 8 months to place Last Time Orders. Please determine your remaining demand for the affected products, and place your order(s) with Intel or your authorized Intel distributor by 2/4/2012 (LOD). Intel will not guarantee current prices to any customer for orders placed after the LOD.

Last Ship Date (LSD) is 8/4/2013 giving customers 25 months to receive product from the June 1st, 2011 PCN publication date.

Non-Cancelable, Non-Returnable (NCNR) terms apply to all shipments after 2/4/2012. Customers can change, cancel or modify their orders up until the LOD of 2/4/2012.

Customers should review their legacy platform forecasts and requirements for the RU82566DM controllers, provide Intel with an End of Life (EOL) forecast, and notify Intel of any changes ASAP during the 8 month Last Time Order EOL window of 6/1/2011 thru 2/4/2012. Although Intel has planned to cover all demand placed through Purchase Orders until the Last Order Date, component stock may be limited at times. Once the supply is exhausted (based on orders placed by the firm LOD), Intel reserves the right not to support orders.

Intel may change the required MOQ (minimum order qty), order increment requirement, or qty of shipments to weekly or monthly buckets to streamline warehouse operations during the EOL period. Intel reserves the right to limit quantity (even if forecasted or purchased on a Purchase Order) if unforeseen material, manufacturing, yield or other supply issues constrain supply at any time thru the EOL period.

Intel will not guarantee current prices to any customers for orders placed after the LOD of 2/4/2012.
